Horse Talk.

There is a retired trainer named Long, residing on a small farm in Alameda county, who lives for nothing else but the pleasure of being near horses. He eats his meals in the stable, of times passes the night in the same stall with a favorite pony, and among his equine pets is a mare who whinnies in answer every time he speaks to her. Our informant relates that the most perfect understanding evidently exists between Mr. Long and at least three out of the five horses in the stable. Two are recent additions, but even in their case the same affinity is seen in a lesser degree.

The training of horses, their obedience, docility, and tricks in a circus, are no novelty; all of us have seen a horse fire a pistol, stand on two legs, waltz, lie down with his trainer, and perform in a hundred acts of sagacity, but these are simply the result of patient training and systematic correction. What Mr. Long claims is far more astounding. He asserts that, from a life long intimacy with horses, he understands their speech; he goes further, and declares that their usual, guttural, explosive, and unobscured sounds have a different meaning, are used by the coalition of the brain and vocal organs, and that not only do his favorite horses understand him, but that every sound which they utter is perfectly plain to him. When arguing with him that though he might comprehend the meaning of the sounds emanating from the vocal chords of a horse, yet it was a patent impossibility for a horse to understand the English language, he replied, "Living, eating and sleeping with my horse has given me this knowledge I possess, and the same intimacy has acquired for my horse the power I claim for them." Here, turning to a slender, light built gray pony, he said: "Billy, we are talking, you if you understand what I am saying, turn your head round on the off side." The pony did so, and then resumed his feed. "Billy," he continued, "tell me, you are, how long you have lived here, and on which side of you is your friend 'Vesta'?" The pony whinnied for about two minutes consecutively, and then, being loose in its stall, walked into the adjoining one occupied by the mare "Vesta."

"Now," he continued, "do you and 'Billy' walk down to your trough and drink while I make you beds." "Vesta" and "Billy" walked quickly out and proceeded straight to the trough. While they were out, Mr. Long turned over the straw carefully with a fork, and carried on an animated conversation with a roan gelding about fifteen hands high, "Vesta's" neighbor on the other side. The name of this horse was "Poley," and after talking eagerly to him some minutes about some fact he had committed the day before, he ordered Mr. "Poley" to lie down and not to get up until after "Vesta" and "Billy" had returned. Our informant saw but little in this to prove Mr. Long's claims, as many a horse will lie down at the word of command; but when without a word, "Poley" arose and walked out to the water trough after the return of the other two horses, the subject became as difficult of solution as before.—News Letter.

A Romantic Story.

Forty years ago there lived in Providence, within a stone's throw from where Grace church now stands a young man of great intelligence and wonderful mechanical ability, who spent a small fortune in the vain attempt at making a perfect representation of Russia iron, and after as many failures as attempts in this undertaking he became utterly ruined financially. His ambition for the secret increased as his fortune grew smaller and smaller, and when absolute want stared him in the face he became possessed with the determination to accept of the only means of obtaining one of the greatest secrets in mechanical art, and to gain this he must suffer penal servitude in the dungeons of Russia.

The rulers of Russia are the only possessors of the art of making what is known as glazed Russia iron, and extend to all kinds of stoves and stove pipe work, and which has for nearly a century been made within the walls of Russia's underground prisons. None but life convicts are allowed to be initiated into the secrets of the manufacture of one of the principal means of income to the Russian Government, and when once within its walls no one need ever hope for pardon, for none has ever been granted, while but one has ever been known to have escaped, and when the door is once shut to the outside world it is never known what has been the fate of the unfortunate.

This, then, was the Providence man's last resort for gaining possession of the secret which had become his only ambition. He left his home for Europe, and the simple rumor of the attempted assassination of the Czar by an American, supposed to be insane, was all that was ever known to his friends of what became of the ambitious mechanic, and, as nearly half a century has rattled on since he set out upon his perilous undertaking, hardly a person living will remember the circumstance which is here recorded. There is one person, however, in Providence who remembers well the day the hero of our sketch bade her a fearful farewell, promising that before she reached her twentieth birthday he would return to her and fulfill his promise.

All through these long years she has never forgotten her promise to wait for her lover, nor ceased to believe he would yet come to her. She now lives within a moment's walk of the church of Grace Church, and is still well preserved, and her grace and beauty make her more attractive than many whose years are the same as were hers when her lover separated from her so long ago. Last week she received the glad tidings from far away over the water that he who had so long kept her patiently waiting was on his way to fulfill his promise of forty years ago, and let us hope he may bring the secret he paid for so dearly, and that he may live to see some reward for his great sacrifice.—Providence Press.

ENCOURAGE HOME MANUFACTURE

I am now manufacturing a good and cheap PAINT, of several colors, the body of which is equal to Lead and Oil, which for tin roofs, barns, stables, fences, &c., will be found very suitable as well as economical, and an improvement over other cheap mixed Paints now in the market. For brick walls with a northern exposure it will act as a preventive to dampness. For iron it makes a solid and lasting coating, impervious to moisture and a preventive of rust. Being of various shades of color, the cornice and masonry can be painted to suit. This Paint has been used by one railroad company and by many of the farmers in this vicinity, and is highly recommended by all who have tried it. Price, single gallon, 75c. 10 gallons $6 per gal. 1 bbl, or 40 gallons, 60c per gal. Oil and color mixed, 50c per gal. Paints on hand and offered at reduced prices to suit.
